A Horrible Death.
At Pleasant Ridge, this county, Tuesday about noon, a very sad accident occurred, which resulted in the death of Eddie Boyd, the sixteen-year-old son of Mr. W. R. Boyd, a thrifty farmer of the Pleasant Ridge neighborhood.

The boy had returned from the field, where he had been plowing, to put his mule in the stable, preparatory to the noon meal. He was sitting on the mule sideways, and had ridden into the stable. In the trough one of his little brothers was lying down, and when the mule entered the stable the little fellow raised up in the trough. This frightened the mule and it wheeled, throwing Eddie off. His feet hung in the gearing. The mule ran out of the stable, jumped the log fence, and ran about over a thicket near field, dragging the boy, leaving his body against the stumps, bushes and trees in the field.

When he was found by the family the boy was dead. His body was bruised and torn. All his clothing, excepting his shoes, had been stripped from his body, and the sight presented was a sickening one.

The remains will be interred in the Green Brier church cemetery today at 2 p. m.—[Owensboro Messenger.]

Twenty five years ago there was not one American Concert Band worthy of the name. After the Peace Jubilee in Boston where the Frenchmen demonstrated the artistic possibilities of brass and reed instruments Gilmore took up the work with great success. Development has gone on. The concert band now conducted by Janes, is among the greatest in the world. Southerners will have a chance to hear Janes at the Tennessee Centennial in June and July. His greatest success has been achieved in the South.

Preparations are being made for the Ohio County Fair, which will be held at Hartford, September 30—3 days. A great deal of work has already been done on the grounds and buildings, getting things in shape for the coming attractions which promises to be the best in years. The programs will soon be issued and active work will begin in earnest. The managers of the Fair Company are live, progressive men. The people of Ohio county should appreciate the Fair enough to contribute liberally to its support.

Clerk of Court of Appeals.
Soon the Democrats will be alighting the familiar old song that we should not run a candidate for clerk of court or appeals, as it would result in the election of a Republican or Goldbug. If the Democrats cared anything about Goldbugs they would have endorsed our nominee—Jo A. Parker.

But this would not suffice the ends of the Democrats. They want to swallow or destroy the People's party. It is the only hope of keeping the Democratic party alive.

Let no people's party man be caught asleep while on duty or waver from the straight and narrow path which in the end will lead to victory. Let the vote of the State at 50,000, and we can reach it with ease if every People's party man will do his duty. Let it be remembered that the vote given Mr. Parker will give to our opponents, and the country generally, some idea of the numerical strength of the People's party in Kentucky.

What does it matter to the people whether the clerk of the court of appeals is a Goldbug or a Republican?

But the future of the People's party is at stake, and every Populist should feel it incumbent upon himself to do all in his power to roll up a vote of forty or fifty thousand for Jo A. Parker for clerk of the court of appeals. Let us give Parker two thousand in Daviess county.—[Parker's Journal.]

Five School House.
Messrs. Clarence Smith and C. W. Britte, members of the school board at Fordville, are in the city to-day to make contracts for material for the building of a fine school house in their town. Plans for a beautiful and substantial structure have been selected, and work will commence at once. The house will cost something over $4,000, and will be a credit and ornament to the town. The board that decided to build the house are all young men, and were only elected last Saturday, but they are pulsers and deserve a great deal of credit for their enterprise.—[Inquirer.]

Kentucky Crop Report.
For the June report replies were received from 164 correspondents, representing 112 counties, leaving only the counties of Adams, Edmonson, Letcher, Metcalf, Oldham, Simpson and Woodford failing to report.

WHEAT.—The condition of the wheat crop June 1st averages 93, which is a loss of 2 points during the month of May. June 1st, 1896, the condition was 61. The crop continues to show the best condition in the central portion of the State, where 12 counties report an average above 100. The highest average condition is in Franklin county, 125. In Henderson county the condition is 55, the lowest, Livingston county following closely with a condition averaging 57.

CORN.—The condition of the corn crop on June 1st averages 82. On this date of 1896 the condition was 93. The crop continues in a very backward state. The weather conditions during May were not calculated to enable the crop to regain the loss due to late planting.

OATS.—Although there was a lack of sunshine and moisture during May the oat crop shown an improvement from 75 May 1st to 82 on the date of this report. The condition on June 1st, 1896, was 69.

TOBACCO.—Little was done towards setting the tobacco crop until the last week of May, when a fair season prevailed over the greater portion of the State. This is in striking contrast with this date in 1896, when practically the entire crop had been set and much of it had received cultivation.

Meadows.—Meadows are quite promising, the only drawback being an unusual amount of weeds in those that have been standing for a number of years. The condition averages 88.

PASTURES.—The condition of pastures averages 94, which is about what might be expected considering the cool, dry weather of May. From Livingston county comes a report of pastures completely destroyed by army worms, which, so far as the report goes, is confined to one farm.

WOOL.—The wool clip of 1897 is estimated at 89 per cent. of the clip of 1896. The average price per pound for this season's clip is 16 cents, a gratifying improvement on 12 1/2c, which was the price paid per pound obtained for clip of 1896.

LIVE STOCK.—Is generally reported in good condition with the exception of work stock, which is very much reduced in flesh owing to the severe work necessary to get the soil in good condition for crops. Cattle and sheep continue in demand. Hogs have suffered about the usual loss from cholera. In McCracken county hogs are reported diseased hitherto unknown. Cattle are dying of "Bloody Murders" in Estill county.

FRUIT.—Apples and peaches have dropped badly during the month. The reports are still very conflicting in regard to these two fruits. Peas and cherries are universally reported a poor crop, while the berry crop promises to be abundant. The general summary of condition is, for apples, 76; peaches, 64; peas, 56, and cherries 56. For May the conditions were, for apples, 66; peaches, 70; peas 74, and cherries, 82.

Commissioner of Agriculture.

Young Man Gone.
Henderson, Ky., June 8.—The news is in circulation here that Hugh Robards, of Niagara, mysteriously disappeared from his home on Saturday night last and hasn't been heard of since. He is a son of Thos. Robards, a highly respected and well-to-do farmer of that neighborhood, and as a natural result the family is very much distressed over the sudden departure of young Robards.

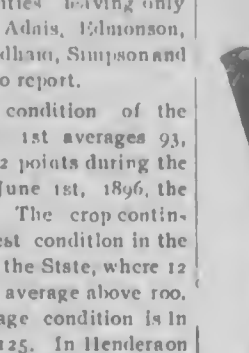

Robards has, it is said, been very much in love with a Miss Rhoads who resides in that neighborhood and has been paying her very close attention until it became the current report that the two were engaged to be married. As the report goes he called on her last Saturday evening and asked her to carry out the engagement and to name the happy day. This she declined to do refusing absolutely to marry him. He then told her that she would never see him alive again or words equivalent and he took his departure. He rode his horse home and put it up in the stable and hasn't been heard of since. He had $50 in money on his person.

Many of his friends and possibly members of his family fear that he has suicided.

The farmer is equally interested with the mechanic in the Protection of our home market. The value of the home market to the farmer is nowhere shown any more conclusively and the Democratic Free-Trade rabble more conclusively proven untrue than by the United States Treasury Statistical Abstract. The consumption of our farm products by our people reached its maximum in 1892, passing our 1893, the year of the panic, and taking 1894, it shows that more than 51 per cent. more pounds of raw cotton were consumed by our people in 1892 under Republican tariff than in the year 1894 under the threat of Democratic free trade tariff; that more than 73 per cent. more wheat was consumed by our people in 1892 than in 1894, that more than 33 per cent. more corn was consumed by our own people in 1892 than in 1894, that more than 32 per cent. more pounds of wool were consumed in 1892 than in 1894.—[Hon. J. H. Walker, M. C., of Massachusetts.]

Historic Address.
On Saturday, June the 5th Edwin Forbes, of Portland, visited the old Forbes farm, now the home of Mrs. W. F. Tatum and family, a few miles north of Hartford. At night he addressed the community at their district schoolhouse No. 103. Col. Forbes' address consisted of the early settlement of that part of Ohio county after the close of the Revolutionary war in 1783 to the citizens there in 1849. He said that many of the first settlers had been soldiers of Washington's continental army, of their fighting on Green River in Ohio county in 1781 to the last Indian incursion in Kentucky in the year 1793, the Forbes farm and the country around it in the year 1849 and citizens stayed at that time at the fort at Hartford and the one at the Zack Austin farm and the early settlers and their battle with the Indians, at and near these forts, the Austins, Stevens, Taylors, Capt. Wm. Duke, Joel Ellis, F. Robertson, F. Morgan and other citizens of the community in 1849, with a tributary respect to their memory and closed his address with a patriotic conclusion in honor of the first settlers and their lineal descendants and a warm appeal to parents on educating their children. The aged widow of W. Austin was present and affirmed that all the speakers said of the history of the community. The audience was large and very attentive and before leaving the house nearly all of the descendants of the old settlers present went to the speaker and shook hands with him. Col. Forbes had at this meeting a map of the Forbes farm in 1849, and eighteen paintings representing scenes on and around the Forbes farm in 1849. These drawings can now be seen at Mrs. Tatum's.

Mr. J. C. Westerfield, Jr., and Miss Addie Hewlett, both of Pleasant Ridge, will be married at the residence of the bride's mother Wednesday morning, June 23, at 8:30 o'clock, the Rev. Dr. J. S. Coleman performing the ceremony. The marriage will be a quiet one, only a few relatives and friends of the contracting parties being present. Immediately after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Westerfield will come to Owensboro and take the 11:35 train and spend their honeymoon at the Nashville exposition. Mr. Westerfield is a young miller, and very popular, while Miss Hewlett is an exceedingly attractive young lady, who has a large circle of friends.—[Owensboro Inquirer.]

TO THE FORMER SCHOOL BOY.

One more I feel disposed to ask of you a space if you deem what I am going to write worthy of print. I wish to write to the former school boy, for if you want to recall the most tender part of my life just mention my school days. My mind often runs back to the date of my school days, when I was sitting on the old bench that was long enough to accommodate a dozen. Many a happy hour we have spent together and upon the school ground we have played a merrym game of ball, but boys the ball has gone over the home plate for the last time. The tap of the bell on the tower of the old knob which I have grasped a many a day, no longer assembles you and me within the walls of my fondest recollections. The ringing of the old school bell no longer reaches the school boy's ear, probably if they were too there would be an exclamation of joy ring out through his system. Many a bright morning I have stepped off of the old home stand and have approached the old school building with my mind trembling like leaves upon the trees at the approach of a storm, and with my heart beating at its full depth, I have opened the door of affection.

At the west corner of the school building there stood a beech tree and yet standing if it has not been destroyed within the last eight months, from which we gathered nuts. We brought them to the surface by the aid of a club; under that old tree I received a blow, which was very painful and blood oozed for a while, but now it is only a pleasant and perpetual remembrance of that old tree, and at the foot of the hill on which the school house stands there runs a little rippling stream, which proves to be a stream of resting about eight months out of the year. A stream you and I have waded with our pants above water and have run upon its banks for hours with bent pins anticipating catching a fish from its shallow water depth, but now we are scattered over the broad field of life from the state of New York to the great and lofty Rocky Mountain range. Boys, am aware of the fact we are separated by miles and the presence of your face I no longer see, but your memory is yet with me and will always be wherever I may roam.

Often look back on the old home-stand and on my road to school and reciting my lessons, while there thoughts are recalled—I am well satisfied. I am situated upon a little knoll just the right height to raise my sight to the prairie over which I see the grass half knee high, which is almost enough to founder the grazing stock. If you were to come into this country at this season of the year you would think it a paradise.

Boys, I haven't been off of the old home-stand but a little while, but I believe I am capable of giving you a little advice. Let me plead while you are yet grazing into the bright future in the presence of your mother knitting yarn and your coffee is yet boiling and sweetened by your mother's hand and you are walking daily by trips from the house to the stock yard to feed your laboring stock, probably you follow from the rise to the set of the sun; make life pleasant. Never say any unkind words to your parents. When you start your farming in the spring of the year start it with a determination of doing it right. While walking between the plow blades of your summer toil and litigine use your line intelligently, study and think so when you have brought furrows to an end of the year and bid the plow on the shelf, you may look back at the pleasant condition of your crop as a good prospect.

Boys, let me plead with you while you are yet treading the honest furrows of agriculture, while yet in the old Blue Grass State, if it is ever your intention to leave your native land, when you grasp your dearest mother good bye let it be accompanied with a vow that you intend to speak the truth. It is far better to be cut down in your bloom and to be buried in an untimely grave and make a grave that is worthy of sorrow and epitaph, than it is to extend a life that will soil the soil profane in which you are buried. The truth is one of the greatest honors you bestow upon yourself. The lie is getting the boy into trouble every day, probably if he had only spoken the truth he would have been cleared of the charge. The lie has shaped the destiny of a many poor boy behind bars of confinement and disgrace, which is a sad fate for anyone to come too. To look through bars and compare the two words confinement and liberty. Boys never allow your own hand to bring trouble upon yourself; never allow your own hand to stop the smile from creeping across your face, for boys if you lose that smile you have lost all of life. Wear that old Kentucky smile where ever you may go, that you may make the most out of life. I wish you a lifelong success and may yet yet bear in mind the sentiments of the old Blue Grass State, "United we stand, divided we fall." SOLDIER. Ft. Reno, Okla., April 4.

A Wise Man.
"I desire to make my will in a very few words," said the dying merchant to his lawyer, "so you can take down what I want to say in three minutes. Are you ready?"

"Ready," answered the lawyer.
"I wish," continued the merchant, "to leave all my property, real and personal, without condition to John Juniper, attorney at law."

"What?" exclaimed the lawyer, jumping up and dropping the pen in the excitement. "You wish to leave all your property to me? Ah, you are joking, Mr. Brown. Ha! ha! The idea of leaving it to me, when I know how devoted you are to your three children. You always were a wiser man, Mr. Brown."

"There's no joke about this," said the sick man gravely. "As you say, I am devoted to my children, and it is for that very reason that I make the will I have dictated."

"I do not understand," said the amazed lawyer.
"I do," continued the merchant. "I know that if I make any other kind of a will there would be a contest and my property would go to the school ground by the time the fight ended. In that event you would not consider yourself under any obligation to do anything for my children, as you would have worked for the property. But if I hand it all over to you by will, thus avoiding the trouble and expense of litigation, you may feel grateful to me and give a small part of my fortune to the little ones. Will you promise to see that they do not starve?"

"I will," answered the lawyer.
And the merchant died away peacefully.—[New York Journal.]

No-To-Bac for Fifty Cents. Guaranteed tobacco habit cure makes weak men strong, blood pure. 50c. Dr. A. H. Atkinson.

"Free Coinage" Demand Mistaken. If any advocate of the free coinage of silver dollars or copper dollars or iron dollars at any ratio, sixteen to one, more or less, will agree to stop there and ask nothing more, I for one am prepared to meet him, and in that way to stop the present contest. Who would want them? Not one of these men will consent to free coinage of those terms. Not one of them would be satisfied. Now one of them would then get what he is after under the pretext that free coinage and "equal rights of gold and silver" are all that he wants. I challenge anyone to find an advocate of free coinage at sixteen to one on these simple terms—that both gold and silver should be treated alike; that both gold and silver coins shall be made for anyone who takes the bullion to the mint to any number that he wants. I challenge any advocate of free coinage to deny that free coinage, pure and simple, is not what he demands, and that anyone who will dare to meet this challenge.

This demand for free coinage is a cover intended to conceal the true purpose of those who ask it. Most of those who support this measure have been deceived and misled. Let such men put the question to any owner of silver mines, to any senator or representative in congress or to any and every candidate on the free coinage platform in the following terms:

"If we grant free or unlimited coinage, without charge for the coinage, will you demand nothing more? Not a man who knows what the true purpose is will answer 'Yes' to that question.—Edward Atkinson.

Is This Result Desirable? Should this country alone attempt free coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one, it would thereby give notice that we are ready to exchange for all concern a quantity of gold which is valued at one dollar in every civilized country for a quantity of silver which represents in the markets of the world about 50 cents.

In a very short time all gold would disappear. It would be hoarded to await a premium or shipped to countries where it is more appreciated. Only silver would remain our circulating medium. We would be on a silver basis. Our standard would be a dollar worth little more than 50 cents in every country but our own.

A silver would quickly adjust themselves to this depreciated dollar and would fluctuate with its changing value in international exchange.

One Way to Get Rid of Silver Questions.

Let the silverites have their own way and the end will not be far off.

A BEAUTIFUL GIRL
Barely Escapes a Life-Long Calamity.

It happened in this way: The young daughter of Mrs. E. S. Gibson, Greenville, South Carolina, was slowly but surely becoming a hopeless invalid. Her mother became anxious and haggard in her frantic efforts to save her daughter. None of her attempts to find a cure seemed of any avail. As stated in her own words:

"My daughter was taken sick some time ago and I tried many medicines in vain. She was very weak, appetite poor, bowels constive, and night sweats. She appeared to be cold all the time, being taken with violent chills at times. Her nerves were in a very bad condition. At last I happened to see one of your little books and wrote you. You recommended Peppermint Chili Tonic. I gave it to her and she has now completely recovered. I owe all that I am worth in this world to you for saving my daughter's life. I shall always keep a supply of your medicine on hand. May you live long to help those suffering as my daughter was."

Rich to the Farm.
A friend of ours owned a good farm a few years ago, about two miles from a thriving city. He and his sons lived on it and had a fine home and where prospering slowly. But they got it in their heads that they could live easier and do better by moving to town and going into business. And they went, renting the farm. They borrowed money on it, and put that with what they had and started a grocery store. He is a man of more than average ability. They all worked early and late for success. Last year, however, was too much for them. They had to trust out too much, and the laboring people had so little money, and there was so much competition among the dealers to get that, that the weakest had to go down. The Sheriff has sold the farm, and everything is gone. They have nothing. As they are our particular friends we feel doubly sorry for them. Now, my good friends, don't you often think that farming is poor business and wish you were out of it and at something else? And don't you know that the usual result would be about as described above? You cannot sell your farm and put your money into any business to day that is honorable and legitimate and sale that will pay you as well. Let us look this matter squarely in the face then take courage and go ahead and make the best of our business. There is no chance to do any better, as a rule, nor as well, all things considered, with the capital invested. I was talking the other day with a shrewd old gentleman, who had considerable property. He remarked: "I keep enough money in farm land to support my wife and family well if everything else went to the dogs. I risk the rest in business. There is nothing safer than good farm land. We have got enough, too, to support us well, no matter what comes. People must eat, and I'm sure can always live on the average. A family out of debt, owning a good farm, reasonably well improved, are well fixed in this world's goods."—[F. B. Terry, in Practical Farmer.]

To cure a chill: When the lips begin to quiver and turn blue, and before the first chilly shivering sensation comes on take a full dose of Dr. Bell's Peppermint Chili Tonic. It is stimulating. It warms the blood. It promotes the circulation of the blood. It will prevent the chill nine times in ten. It is guaranteed to prevent the chill ten times in ten if taken four hours before chill time. For sale by Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro.

HOW TO FIND OUT.
Fill a bottle or common water glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment of settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Kidney and Bladder Remedy fills every wise to relieve pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists price fifty cents and one dollar. For a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail, mention THE HARTFORD REPUBLICAN and send your full post-office address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

An Exceptional Man.
Mr. Samuel Duddarar, of the Goshen section, is an exceptional man in many respects and is no doubt the healthiest man in the county, age taken in consideration. During the sixty-five years of his life he has had a doctor only once; then when he was less than ten years old. He has never sworn an oath, never tried to chew or smoke, and was never under the influence of whisky, although he does not his life to take today when his system calls for it. He was never drunken for an account to his life, and if he pays all debts like he does the Interior Journal he never will be, in any way paying for his paper before his subscription expires. He commenced life with less than nothing, and now he is one of Lincoln's most solid citizens having a 50 acre farm of fine land, well stocked, bank stock, and, last, but not least, a nice bank account. Mr. Duddarar never comes to town with anything to sell, and when he came Wednesday he was loaded down with feathers, wool and eggs. For the ninety-six pounds of feathers he received 32 cents; 26 pounds of wool, 17 cents, and 40 dozen eggs, 6 cents, making $77.34. "Hard times don't bother me much," said he; "the harder the times the harder I work."—[Standard Interior Journal.]

ONE OF GRANT'S VICTORIES.
Was Won in a Time of Peace—Vetoed an Inflation Bill.
One of Gen. Grant's greatest victories was not won in war, but in times of profound peace. On April 24, 1874, he vetoed an inflation bill which had passed both houses of congress by decided majorities, and back of which were many eminent republican politicians who imagined that they saw sure defeat ahead for their party unless they made concessions to those clamoring for "more money." The pressure for the bill was purely political. Grant's business sense urged the president to sign the bill in order to "stop inflation." In this trying situation President Grant showed patriotism wholly above partisanship, and a clear conception of sound financial principles, unobscured by short-sighted notions of immediate business expedients.

He vetoed the bill because in theory it would produce inflation. "The theory," he declared, "in my belief is a departure from the true principles of finance, national internal, national obligations to creditors, congressional promises to the people, and the part of both political parties and of personal views and promises made by me in every annual message sent to congress and in each inaugural address."

So far from being a "settlement," the bill invited agitation. "Should it be passed," he declared, "it would be expected of it, the friends of the measure, particularly those out of congress, would clamor for such inflation as would give the expected relief." And he defined his general principle in these pregnant words: "I am not a believer in any artificial method of making paper money equal to coin when the coin is not owned or held ready to redeem the promise to pay, for paper money is nothing more than promise to pay, and is valuable exactly in proportion to the amount of coin that it can be converted into."

The monetary battles of this country are not yet all fought. Grant's words and acts should inspire those engaged in the present struggle.

Our Monetary Disease.
To safely and permanently maintain the gold standard requires the remodeling of our finances. The disease is the character of the money in the treasury and in the pockets of the people. It is a banking system which concentrates currency in commercial centers, while creating a dearth in country districts, which issues a currency which cannot expand when it ought to and when there is no necessity. It is in compelling the maintenance of $100,000,000 gold reserve to float a vast volume of paper money by the government, which cannot regulate its issues to meet the needs of commerce.

The disease cannot be cured by any makeshift.—Senator Donelson Caffery.

Silverites Should Drop Jefferson.
It is vain to invoke the authority of Jefferson for the coinage of 50-cent dollars or any other debasement of the currency. Our "no-democratic" friends, if they wish to vindicate their claim to the title of "old line democrats," who have Jefferson for their father, will have to abandon their idea of free coinage at the ratio of sixteen to one, or any other arbitrary rate, but if they will have a double standard, make it thirty-two to one, in order to be honest in the payment of debts and to conform to the actual ratio in the value of the two metals in the markets of the world, it being, as Mr. Jefferson says, "a mercantile problem altogether."—Hartford Sun.

Is Japan Fifty Years Ahead of Us?
The exportation of gold under existing circumstances involves no danger to this country, but it is not pleasant to reflect that the present shipments are called for partly to furnish the supply for Japan. It is less than 50 years since we bombarded the hitherto Japanese to bring him to a realizing sense of our higher civilization, and now apparently Japan is 50 years ahead of us. A large number of our people in that practice and important development of civilization which demands that it shall take 100 cents to make a dollar.—N. Y. World.
